

The Rockefeller Dictatorship

*Selected Excerpts

New Secret World-Government Set to Take Over the U.S. Will End American National Sovereignty

BY C.B. BAKER

THE CONFIRMATION of Nelson Rockefeller as unelected Vice President marks the beginning of an absolute totalitarian dictatorship in the United States. The U.S. Congress ignored the overwhelming evidence against Rockefeller (bribery, mass conflict of interest, treason, corruption, and numerous other crimes) and, in effect, passed an "enabling act" to set up the Rockefeller dictatorship.

To fully understand the dictatorial scheme, one must realize that the Rockefellers are using economic disaster as their chief tool to produce and justify dictatorial measures. Terrible repressive austerity actions are now being prepared to supposedly "combat" the very economic conditions that were themselves created by the Rockefeller-Council on Foreign Relations gang in the first place.

Rockefeller international trading policies have allowed the CFR-multi-national corporations to strip America's wealth and ship it to our worst enemies in the Soviet Union and in Red China. America's taxpayers have been forced to financially underwrite these foreign deals which have resulted in huge domestic shortages and skyrocketing prices.

Between the beginning of September,

1974 and the end of November, 1974, the U.S. standard of living (in terms of real costs and wages) was reduced by 8 percent. The lower the U.S. living standard, the more the CFR gang can deprive and loot from America to sell to Rockefeller's allies in Red China and the Soviet Union.

Dr. Arthur Burns, Chairman of the Federal Reserve, is also busy at work producing other methods to bring about economic collapse. Burns demanded that the U.S. cut energy consumption by 15 to 20 percent at least. He stated that the American public should be willing to make even greater energy cuts above the 20 percent level "if necessary to share our own oil supplies with friendly nations who are in worse shape."

Dr. Burns' demand for U.S. energy reduction by 20 percent or more is also part of the overall Rockefeller scheme to create a new depression, far worse than the one America experienced in the 1930's. There is simply no way for the U.S. to cut its energy use by 20 percent without totally ruining the American economy, which of course is the CFR's chief goal. Burns demands super-high gasoline taxes which will sharply reduce individual freedom to travel and thus, build another step in the Rockefeller dictatorial tyranny.

Increasing Supply of Money

Most economists feel that a "normal" healthy currency expansion is about 2 percent a year. Many false stories have been printed about the so-called "tight money policy" of the Federal Reserve Board. The fact is that Dr. Burns and his fellow gangsters at the Federal Reserve spent the first six months of 1974 vastly diluting U.S. currency at an incredible rate that fluctuated between 5.5 percent and 7 percent. This enormous dilution of the currency is the number one cause of the American economic inflation.

In 1972, David Rockefeller established a new organization, The Trilateral Commission, which is designed to become a one-world shadow government, far more efficient and deadlier than the United Nations. The Trilateral Commission consists of 200 bankers, businessmen, academicians, writers, parliamentarians, state governors, and key labor leaders from Europe, North America, and Japan. It is most significant that Rockefeller has chosen to include important labor leaders to thus neutralize and control his own opposition within the socialist parties and labor movements of the Trilateral countries.

Of the 200 Trilateral Commission members, there are approximately 60 commissioners (kommissars) from the U.S. and an equal number from Japan and Europe. The Trilateral Commission has an Executive Committee of 34 members, consisting of nine representatives from Japan, nine from the U.S., two from Canada, and 14 representatives from the European Common Market countries. The Trilateral Commission is financed primarily by grants from the following tax-exempt foundations: the Ford Foundation, Lilly Endowment, the Rockefeller Brothers Fund and the Kettering Foundation (which also finances the U.S.-Soviet Dartmouth Convergence Conferences.)

The March 2, 1973 New York Times carried North American Trilateral Director Gerald C. Smith's description of the purpose of the Trilateral Commission. Smith stated, "The United States, Western Europe and Japan face a common condition. They are the major industrial areas of the world, and they share common concerns about the problems of environment and modern industrial society as well as common security concerns."

Trilateral Commission Members

(A Partial List)

DAVID ROCKEFELLER—Organizer and Commander-in-Chief of the Trilateral Commission, Chairman of the Chase Manhattan Bank, leader of the CFR.

ZBIGNIEW BRZEZINSKI—Chairman of the Trilateral Commission, head of the Columbia University Institute of Communist Affairs.

North American Commissioners

WILLIAM SCRANTON—former Governor of Pennsylvania, participant in the SALT disarmament talks.

GEORGE W. BALL—former U.S. Under Secretary of State, CFR member and senior partner at Lehman Brothers International Bankers.

HEDLEY DONOVAN—Editor-in-Chief of Time Magazine, also a member of the CFR, and participant in the super-secret Bilderberger meetings and Dartmouth conferences.

EDWIN REISCHAUER—former Ambassador to Japan, professor at Harvard University.

LEONARD WOODCOCK—President of the United Auto Workers.

WALTER MONDALE—U.S. Senator (D-Minn.).

I.W. ABEL—President of Steelworkers Union.

JOHN CULVER—U.S. Congressman (D-Iowa), head of the ultra-leftist Democratic Study Group.

A.W. CLAUSEN—Chief Executive, Bank of America.

ROBERT V. ROOSA—former Under Secretary of the Treasury, partner in the investment house of Brown Brothers Harriman.

ELLIOT L. RICHARDSON—former Attorney General of the U.S., ultra-liberal Republican, now U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain.

JOHN ANDERSON—U.S. Congressman (R-Ill.), liberal Republican and strong advocate of forced busing.

"They are the only regions with the economic and technical resources to respond to the larger problems that face us. They jointly share a global responsibility and we think their relations are threatened by domestic concerns which tend to drive the regions apart. . ."

In other words, American national sovereignty and the U.S. Constitution must be totally destroyed because they are "domestic concerns" that interfere with the Rockefeller-CFR plan for a one-world dictatorship.

Smith told the New York Times that the Trilateral Commission "is definitely not a lobbying organization, though it will probably invite some members of Congress and other parliaments to join the Commission." The Trilateral Commission will exercise a real backdoor control on Capitol Hill through key Trilateral members in Congress who take orders from Rockefeller.

The October 24, 1973 New York Times reported that the Trilateral Commission is "an active group making policy recommendations to governments. . ." The Times report is another indication that the Trilateral gang is going to be issuing orders to the U.S. Government.

Inviting the Soviets

The June 18, 1974 New York Times reported "the lives and fortunes of large numbers of human beings hang upon the outcome of decisions taken by a small handful of national leaders" in the Trilateral Commission. The New York Times continued, "the Trilateral Commission task force suggests that the Soviet Union be encouraged to participate. . . International financial planners have grown accustomed to leaving the Soviet Union out of their calculations and programs on the basis of clear historical and ideological experience. But the Russians have become increasingly integrated in fact, if not institutionally, in the world trading economy, and have actually received considerable financial benefit from the increase in raw material prices."

The July, 1973 issue of Foreign Affairs

(the official publication of the Council on Foreign Relations) contained a lengthy article, "U.S. Foreign Policy: The Search for Focus," by Trilateral Chairman Zbigniew Brzezinski. In that article, Brzezinski detailed his strong support for internationalism and the sell-out-America policies of the CFR multi-national corporations. The Trilateral Chairman went to great length in the article to criticize "the Kissinger approach to foreign policy." Brzezinski advocated the abandonment of what he called Kissinger's "unilateral" U.S. approach, which would be replaced by a new "trilateral" approach, involving blocks of Europe, North America, and Japan (hence the name—The Trilateral Commission).

End of National Sovereignty

In his Foreign Affairs article, Brzezinski wrote that the United States, Western Europe and Japan have "a special obligation . . . to shape their policies with broader concerns in mind than the dictates of national interest alone." He further wrote, "Today the Atlantic (Union) framework is too narrow to encompass the multitude of challenges—and opportunities—that confront the international community. . . The active promotion of such trilateral cooperation must now become the central priority of U.S. policy."

Brzezinski demanded "nothing less than deliberate, closer, and more institutionalized political consultation" (note: "consultation" is Brzezinski's code word for political union with foreign powers and the total abandonment of U.S. national sovereignty). Brzezinski continued, "These consultations. . . must be ab initio on the basis of trilateral parity."

The Foreign Affairs article detailed the aims of the Trilateral Commission: "To develop common political planning" (without regard for the U.S. Constitution or the will of the American people) "it would be desirable (1) to adopt as a matter of regular practice the holding of annual Trilateral Cabinet meetings . . . perhaps regular meetings of the respective heads of government might be scheduled on a less frequent basis." (No need to bother with holding meetings of elected officials when the Trilateral secret world government will be really running things.) Brzezinski continued, "(2) to reinforce the above with a standing secretariat, particularly with a common policy planning and review staff, in part as back-up for the above and in part as a stimulant to the emergence and crystallization of common perspectives and policies; (3) to promote consultations in a larger framework, involving states outside the formal confines of the 'cooperative triangle'; (4) to hold three-way meetings of the respective parliamentarians, on as wide a party basis as possible."

Step number four, above, indicates the CFR attempt to infiltrate and take control of all political parties all over the world. Step number four is also a specific reference to the Rockefeller flunkies in the U.S. Congress who will be ordered to draw up legislation to "legalize" all of the secret decisions of the Trilateral super world government.

Decline of American Power

Brzezinski predicted the fall of American power even in the Western Hemisphere (and the give-away of the Panama Canal) when he stated, "... American hegemony in Latin America must decline—and the United States is beginning to accept that reality."

Brzezinski concluded his article by forecasting the final destruction of American power and "a gradually emerging community of the developed nations will be in a better position to pursue true detente, the aim of which is not an artificially compartmentalized globe, fundamentally in conflict with basic global dynamics, but a world in which the spheres of exclusive (national) predominance fade."

Without the consent of the U.S. Congress, Henry Kissinger has handed over control of American energy resources to a new international body—the International Energy Agency (IEA). The Federal Energy Administration admits that in the event of another oil embargo (caused by a new Rockefeller-manipulated Mid-East war), every decision about U.S. energy allocation, stockpiling, and distribution will be made by the International Energy Agency.

The IEA was established on November 18, 1974, as an internationalist organization that will have the power to make binding energy decisions on all sixteen member nations, including the U.S.A. Congress never okayed this treasonous abandonment of American national power and sovereignty. The totalitarian IEA can order the United States to adopt forced rationing "austerity," and mandatory consumption drops.

State Department spokesmen for Kissinger admit that the U.S. submission of its energy resources to the IEA could be implemented by the back door, even without Congressional approval, by invoking the Defense Production Act. However, Kissinger has favored the passage of some kind of legislation to prevent a violent public reaction to his criminal rip-off of American energy resources.

The IEA preliminary target is a forced 30 percent cut in energy usage (which in turn will bring a mammoth economic collapse).

Guaranteed Profits

The December 3, 1974 Washington Post reported that the IEA will order all 16 member countries to "set a minimum price for oil during the next ten years . . . to guarantee the (Rockefeller allied) oil companies minimum annual earnings on their sales even if oil prices were to plummet on the world market."

The American people will be forced to pay the higher oil and gasoline prices even if the oil producing nations drastically cut their prices.

The IEA policy is an open violation of the Federal anti-trust laws against price fixing. Of course, U.S. laws don't affect the IEA because it is an "international" agency, like a fugitive, safely harbored from American laws and the U.S. Constitution.
